

How We Help Commercial Clients

If you're a developer, builder, business owner, property owner, landlord, property manager, or office center owner, you probably haven't read your insurance policy lately. Even if you've recently pulled it out and dusted it off, you probably didn't fully understand all the provisions, conditions, and endorsements.

Now that your business has encountered a loss, ask yourself:

- 1.If this were a business deal, would I hire an expert for a financial transaction of this magnitude?*
- 2.Was my workday calendar already filled before this loss occurred?*
- 3.Am I prepared to trust an employee to handle a large, complicated claim involving major damage to building(s) and contents, as well as loss of business income? Can I afford to have that employee dedicate themselves full-time to resolving this claim over the next several weeks or months?*
- 4.Do I want this matter resolved knowing that an expert is looking out for my company's interests?*

We know that, right now, you're thinking about where your income will come from, how you'll make payroll, how you'll service customers, and how you'll provide for your family. The last thing you need to worry about is preparing and filing your own claim. Let us take care of those details for you; we'll explain everything when you contact us.

SLC Gets Results

"I contacted SLC after the hurricane on Chowan River. Damage in the area was almost universally described as being water damage as opposed to wind damage. It became a cop-out for insurance companies, who said they wouldn't underwrite water damage. But SLC secured us the policy limits; that was a tremendous success when the insurance company first told us they were going to give us zero. I also had a business that was damaged. SLC got the maximum out of that case as well."
